Shelter Dogs Were Cooped Up Inside, Until This Cross-Country Team Found A Way To Change That

Life for shelter dogs can be very stressful. Being in an enclosure all day can really give dogs a lot of anxiety. Of course staff at shelters always try to get the dogs out as much as possible, but sometimes there are just too many of them. These high-schoolers from St. Joseph High School, in California, are doing something awesome to help these pups get some fresh air.

The students are on their school's cross-country team, and have decided to invite the shelter dogs along on their daily workout. Each student was paired with a pup from the Santa Barbara County Animal Shelter, and then they go out for their miles-long run together.

"I am not sure who was more excited and having the most fun...the dogs or the kids," team coach Luis Escobar wrote on Facebook. "Either way, it was a great time and I am sure we will do it again sometime soon." This is such an amazing idea and hopefully this inspires other schools to do the same!

Okay, Ralph let me 'splain it you again. You're big, I'm little; BUT!!! you're dog, I'm cat that makes me the boss. Got it ??

Animals Love Each Other

National Guard soldiers from New York were recently reunited with a stray dog and her seven puppies who had become “part of the family” while they were all stationed in Afghanistan.

St. Johns Deputy Dan Sorrells responded to a call about an animal being abused and followed a trail of blood for about 45 minutes until he found a Collie/Lab mix named Amber, who came out of the woods tail wagging, but in obvious pain. Deputy Sorrells is not only paying for Amber's vet bills, but he is also going to adopt her and welcome her as a member of his family.

Available at Eagle Valley Humane Society

Lily and Puma. Two year old frisky, loving and playful sisters. Three year old Roxy gets along beautifully with other dogs and is looking for a lap to call her own.

Available at Eagle County Animal Shelter

Louie is a 3 year old neutered male Chihuahua mix. Louie came to the shelter very shy and quiet. He is slowly learning to trust others and it's been amazing seeing the transformation in him. Louie hopes to find a quiet home where he will receive lots of love and attention. This boy is very special and has won the hearts of the shelter staff. Will he win yours as well?

Stomper is an adorable two year old Pitbull mix. He is a neutered male with a great personality! Stomper has needed a lot of TLC since arriving at the shelter and is doing great. He loves playing outside and does well with other large dogs. We are not sure how he will do with small dogs and cats but he should do well in a home with kids. This boy will catch your eye with his goofy ears and will win your heart with his loving demeanor.
